More talk than action?

Education. Report correctly identifies most areas of concern, but includes mostly broad recommendations for change, says consultant dent health.

Like the Ivany report on economics, Bennett said the education report raises the alarm in several areas, including a lack of proper evaluation and appraisal of teachers, and the failure of the school system to prepare students for work or university.

Bennett said he doubts the education report will do more than generate a lot of talk.

"The recommendations are very broad," he said. "When the minister (of education) said they were taking a holistic approach to the changes, that often means ... their action plan will be so dispersed that it won't have any major effect."

Halifax Regional School Board chair Gin Yee said the board would discuss the report, but didn't want to comment on any particular aspect of it.

"We ... need to take our time to review the document, but also keep in mind these are just recommendations," he said. "We hope we'll be consulted ... about the implementation."

A consultant based in Halifax says the new report on the provincial education system is "damning," but questions whether it will lead to any significant change.

"It's a damning report on the state of education, but ... I think we may find out the rhetoric's a bit overheated," Paul Bennett of Schoolhouse Consulting said Thursday.

The report, "Disrupting the Status Quo," is based on more than 19,000 online surveys and another 50,000 written responses submitted over nine months. It suggests half of respondents aren't satisfied with the current system and makes recommendations in seven areas ranging from curriculum improvements to improving teacher performance and stu-

Mainland Common should be going to the dogs, meeting hears

Off-leash park. But go big and do it right, residents tell city staff

STEPHANIE TAYLOR
halifax@metronews.ca

It seems that size matters when it comes to off-leash dog parks.

That's what many residents said at a public meeting Thursday evening where they heard about the possibility of commissioning an area on the Mainland Common as a new off-leash dog park.

More than 50 residents gathered at the Halifax Forum to discuss the suitability of the site and provide feedback to the city's parks and recreation staff.

The proposed site, a fenced-in grassy area on the southwest side of the Common, is currently used as a warm-up area for the adjacent sports field. Phasing in a second wooded area nearby has also been proposed.

The total size of the new park would be about two-and-a-half acres. However, the sports field next to the site plans to expand, which many people felt was a "deal-breaker."

"I think that decision needs to be made before we can decide that's our park," said Sabrina Giddings, who was otherwise pleased with the new site.

"If that expansion is going to happen, we need to find a new location."

Many other residents, such as Kristin Ross, voiced concerns over the process of commissioning the off-leash park in phases and felt the city should make a firm commitment.

"Settling for Phase 1 and then who knows whether Phase 2 will happen gets us into another conundrum," Ross said.

Peter Bigelow, manager of open-space planning at parks and recreation, said the purpose of Thursday's meeting was for staff to collect feedback from residents to make a recommendation to council over whether to commission the site.

The search for a new off-leash dog park began after council voted in June to de-commission the Africville dog park once a suitable site was found by the end of the year.

At first, staff suggested moving the off-leash park to an area east of Africville, near the MacKay Bridge, but that was nixed after the public response was overwhelmingly negative.

Bigelow said the Mainland Common was then selected because it fulfils a number of criteria required for an off-leash dog park, such as its proximity to nature and its accessibility by roadway.

Sexual assault allegation 'not valid': Cops

Police in Halifax say they have concluded their investigation into an alleged sexual assault in Lower Sackville, saying it was "not valid."

and Sackville High School.

Police had said they were looking for two men driving a dark-coloured two-door car that had been parked in front of the Kinsmen Club.

Halifax RCMP spokesman Cpl. Greg Church said Thursday that "following a lengthy police investigation we came to the conclusion that the claim was not valid."

Church said the police investigation was a "large undertaking" and used many resources, but it ultimately determined there was no evidence that supported the original claim.

"Every (sexual assault) complaint that is given to us is taken very seriously," he said, explaining it is rare for a sexual assault accusation to be deemed "not valid."

Education review calls for change

Schools. One suggestion is to fire underperforming teachers

School boards in Nova Scotia should have the authority to fire teachers for substandard performance and students should spend more time in the classroom, says a review that gives the province's education system a failing grade.

A report released Thursday makes 30 recommendations calling for improvements in seven key areas including curriculum, teaching and the structure of the school system.

Former lieutenant-governor Myra Freeman, who led the six-member panel that examined the school system, said half of the 19,000 people who took online surveys as part of a public consultation process were dissatisfied.

"The results are not acceptable," said Freeman. "They voiced a large number of concerns about an education that has changed very little in the last 50 years."

The 60-page report recommends better alignment between a teacher's qualifications and what they teach as well as mandatory performance appraisals.

As part of that appraisal system the report says school boards should be given the power to dismiss teachers who underperform.

Education Minister Karen Casey said some of the changes would likely clash with the collective agreement with the teachers' union. She said that may be especially true when it comes to the hiring of new teachers and ensuring they instruct in their areas of expertise while other, more senior teachers are still employed.

"There is a seniority clause and that often inhibits or limits the ability to have that outcome realized," said Casey.

She said she plans to meet with the union's leadership next week to discuss the report.

Shelley Morse, the president of the Nova Scotia Teachers' Union, said changes concerning seniority provisions of the collective agreement would have to be negotiated and wouldn't be given up voluntarily.

"It's in our contract, so I can't speak about what we would do with articles in our contract until we are at the negotiating table," said Morse.

She said it was too early to say what the recommended changes may mean for issues such as performance. But she was against a recommendation that says removing principals, superintendents and other supervisory staff from the union should be considered.

"That would be something that would not please me. We have run on a collegial model for a number of years and that has always worked well."

More credits for high schoolers suggested

Education Minister Karen Casey
JEFF HARPER/METRO

The education report released Thursday also recommends a redesign of the early elementary curriculum to focus primarily on math and literacy skills and says gaps must be addressed at the junior and senior high school levels in areas such as science, technology, math and financial literacy.

It says the number of credits required for graduation from high school should be increased from 18 to 21 and the number of free periods should be reduced to a maximum of three in Grades 11 and 12.

Myra Freeman, who led the panel, said there was little feedback from the public on the question of how long school days should be, but the recommendation increasing the number of credits required while decreasing students' free time would see them spending more time in class.

The report also says the system of inclusion for students with special needs isn't working and there needs to be broader support for resources already in place as well as more highly qualified specialist teachers to assist where appropriate.

Education Minister Karen Casey said further consultations will be held with teachers, parents, school boards and other groups involved in the school system before issuing the government's formal response in January.

Dozens of family members and friends swarmed in a happy mob onto the deck of the HMCS Athabaskan on a misty grey morning Thursday, throwing their arms around loved ones not seen in two months.

Eden Fitzpatrick and her friend Shannon McGuinness both waved Canadian flags as they watched their husbands' ship come in, and both agreed a two-month mission feels as hard as any other.

Fitzpatrick said you just get used to living without the other person and take it "day by day."

"You just hope that someday they'll come back," Fitzpatrick said.

"You're kind of on half-edge all the time ... always waiting for something but now the wait's over," McGuinness added.

Fitzpatrick's six-year-old son, Bryce, said he felt "good" about having his dad home, and that they liked playing games and matching cards together.

Comm. Mathias Plaschka, commanding officer of the Athabaskan, told reporters the ship helped disrupt a shipment of 820 kilograms of cocaine when a vessel saw them and "took off the other way" before being intercepted by a Colombian member of the campaign.

Plaschka said the crew of 298 also participated in diplomatic missions such as representing Canada in Baltimore for the 200th anniversary of the U.S. national anthem, and working with an ambassador in Mexico.

Woman accused of defrauding aboriginal organization

The RCMP have charged a woman with theft and fraud after an organization that provides employment training for aboriginals in Nova Scotia was allegedly defrauded of more than $350,000 over three years.

An investigation was launched after the RCMP received a complaint from the Paq'tnek First Nation last year regarding the alleged misappropriation of funds from the Mi'kmaq Employment and Training Secretariat.

Police allege more than $350,000 was misappropriated between 2010 and 2013.

On its website, the secretariat says it provides human resource programs and services to help aboriginals find and maintain employment.

The Mounties say 38-year-old Dawn Marie Johnson of the Paq'tnek First Nation is due in court Nov. 26 on charges of theft over $5,000, fraud over $5,000, forgery and uttering a forged document.

Moosehead Breweries have tapped into the craft-beer trend of reusable growlers.

Senior sales supervisor for the province Ken McCormick helped launch the growler station at the Moosehead Cold Beer Store in Dartmouth on Thursday, where people can now buy a 1.9-litre jug for $10 and choose one of four taps of draft for another $10 or $12.

"The entire beer market is shifting. People want different experiences, people want different flavours," McCormick said.

He said Moosehead currently sells a lot of large kegs for "home consumers" but although they're convenient for a wedding or large party, they're not ideal for the average draft fan.

Moosehead's newest Hop Bot brew, a 7.1 per cent "West Coast-style IPA," was featured for the first time in draft form Thursday, although Mc-Cormick said it has been in liquor stores for a few weeks. "Every brewmaster is kind of a mad scientist and they like to get their own kitchen recipes going," McCormick said.

The Cold Beer Store is the only location in the province for Moosehead fans to fill up their growlers, McCormick said, since it is the "flagship" location that has been open since 1986.

Chris Hunter, Cold Beer Store manager, said a growler is a different experience than bottled beer since draft is "fresher" and the reusable jug is better for the environment.

McCormick said the growlers themselves were "not a big investment" and Hunter said they should "break even" shortly since they've been letting people know about the new option over the last few weeks.

"Beer lends itself very well to food ... to a social occasion," McCormick said. "It is designed to be shared, it is designed to be consumed basically in one sitting."

"You don't always have to go wine," he said with a laugh.

Angles suddenly shutters

Area residents in two Nova Scotia communities are saying goodbye to the Angles Family Eatery & Pub.

Two Angles locations, one on Sackville Drive in Lower Sackville and another on Gerrish Street in Windsor, closed earlier this week for unspecified reasons. General manager Ryan Coady confirmed the closure of the pubs, but was unable to provide any other details.

"I can't give out details as to why," wrote Coady in a private message sent from the Angle's Family Eatery &

It appears the decision to call it a day was sudden.

On Oct. 15, a post was added to the Facebook page for the Windsor location, prompting patrons to choose to spend Halloween night at Angles. A local band, Electric Lettuce, was booked for the event.

The provincial Registry of Joint Stock Companies lists James Archibald as the primary contact for Angles. Archibald has yet to respond to interview requests.

Dal unveils new state-of-the-art $1.8M research laboratory

Cutting-edge. Facility one of the largest of its kind in Canada

Students and scientists say research at a new, state-of-the-art laboratory at Dalhousie University is going along swimmingly.

On Thursday, the school unveiled its new $1.8-million zebrafish lab and CORES (Centralized Operation of Research Equipment and Support) facility, located at the Life Sciences Research Institute building.

The new 4,000-square-foot facility features a molecular lab and a number of small rooms that are used to conduct tissue and cell experiments. It also has the capacity to hold upwards of 65,000 zebrafish at one time, and was custom designed by lab workers to suit their specific research needs.

Dr. Jason Berman is the director of the aptly named Berman Fish Laboratory, a specialist in pediatrics and oncology at the IWK Health Centre, and an associate professor in microbiology and pathology at Dalhousie.

He said the new facility is one of the largest labs of its kind in Canada, and believes it can transform "Halifax into the national centre for zebra research and disease modelling."

"Zebrafish, which is somewhat humbling, are very genetically similar to people," Berman explained Thursday.

In fact, he said zebrafish have a much more straightforward genetic makeup and development pattern than humans do, which makes them ideal for research into how diseases spread, particularly cancer.

Because zebrafish are also a transparent grey colour, Berman said researchers can literally watch how diseased cells spread through a body through a microscope. Compared to mice, he also said zebrafish are considerably less expensive and can produce up to 2,000 embryos each week.

Besides cancer research, the new zebrafish lab also conducts research on rare diseases, neuroscience and behaviour patterns.

Gretchen Wagner is a graduate of biology from Dalhousie and now works as the head technician in the fish rooms.

She said one of the main experiments carried out is what's called xenotransplantation, where cancer cells are collected from a human patient, labelled with a fluorescent dye, then infused into the fish in order to study what types of drugs are most effective for treatment.

The ultimate goal, Berman said, is to bring cancer researchers one step closer to finding a cure.

"We can screen large numbers of zebrafish with many compounds very quickly, much for efficiently than we could in mice or other animal models in order to find treatments that restore normal development," he said.

St. Mary's up in uni rankings

Saint Mary's University in Halifax has taken a jump in the annual Maclean's ranking of universities across the country.

Maclean's University Rankings for 2014 were announced on Thursday and Saint Mary's was ranked as fifth in the primarily undergraduate category, compared to eighth last year.

According to Maclean's, the category largely focuses on undergraduate education, "with relatively fewer graduate programs and graduate students."

Mount Saint Vincent was ranked 17th.

Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., kept the top spot in the category for another year while Acadia University jumped from fourth to second place.

Saint Mary's University JEFF HARPER/METRO

Dalhousie University remained ranked at seventh place in the medical doctoral category compared to last year.

The doctoral category focuses on schools with "a broad range of PhD programs and research" plus medical schools, according to Maclean's.

McGill, the University of British Columbia and the University of Toronto took the top three spots respectively.

Bell Aliant workers ratify wage increase deal

Union members at Bell Aliant have ratified a labour deal that gives them a six per cent wage hike over three years.

Rick Rose of Unifor says

74 per cent of workers who voted ratified the agreement.

The union local represents 2,800 workers at the Atlantic Canada telecommunications firm.

The agreement takes effect on Jan. 1 and will cover the workers once they become employees of Bell Canada Enterprises.

Wage increases are for two per cent in each of the three years of the agreement and come with a $1,000 signing bonus, an increase in hardship allowances, and improved boot and safety shoe entitlements.

The deal also offers provisions for up to 450 workers to be offered enhanced retirement incentives.

Trial in Taavel's death on hold

Till December. Judge concerned with the accused's inability to find a lawyer

The case of a man accused in a fatal beating outside a Halifax bar has been adjourned until December.

Andre Noel Denny is charged with second-degree murder in the April 2012 death of 49-year-old Raymond Taavel.

The 35-year-old Membertou man was expected to stand trial in Nova Scotia Supreme Court in September, but it was delayed when he fired his lawyer.

The case returned to court today, where it was put over to Dec. 11 to give two legal aid lawyers time to review disclosure and decide if their schedules will allow them to represent Denny.

Earlier this month, Judge John Murphy said he was getting concerned about the delay caused by Denny's inability to find representation. The Crown says it wants to move the case forward. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Raymond Taavel, a well-known gay rights activist in Halifax, died outside Menz bar on Gottingen Street following an altercation.

Brawl gets three high schoolers arrested

Three students were arrested following a fight this week at Northumberland Regional High School that resulted in one student being sent to hospital.

The fight began before the morning bell in one of the lower parking lots of the school property, said Chignecto Central Regional School Board communications officer Debbie Buott-Matheson.

"The matter was resolved rather quickly, once staff became aware," she said.

She said the student was taken by paramedics to the hospital. She could not comment on his current condition. NEW GLASGOW NEWS

At Dartmouth Crossing. Video shows missing senior at Canadian Tire

Police in Halifax have released a short video of a missing man who hasn't been seen since Sunday.

James Cuthbert, 71, left his Head of Jeddore home in the Highway 7 area on Sunday morning, according to police. He was seen at the Esso service station on Cole Harbour Road just after noon, then at the Canadian Tire in Dartmouth Crossing around 12:30 p.m.

The 11-second video released by police on Thursday afternoon shows Cuthbert walking down an aisle at the Canadian Tire location.

Officers with the integrated criminal investigation division also say Cuthbert was in the parking lot of Home Depot in his car, a white 2012 Toyota

Housing market going soft: CMHC

Report. Agency's market analyst says Halifax homeowners of the early 2000s are choosing to downsize to apartments

By the numbers

500

The number of single detached home starts expected in 2015

An aging population is getting some of the blame for projections that housing demand will slump in Halifax in 2015 and rebound only slightly in 2016.

The latest report from the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) released Thursday suggests demand for single-family homes fell in 2014 and will be well below normal in 2015, though apartment construction, sales and rentals are on the upswing.

"We see the direct link between people exiting home ownership — empty nesters, single-person households — and moving into an apartment," said CMHC Atlantic

Business Centre senior market analyst Guillaume Neault. "This explains partially why apartment units have been so popular."

Neault said the Halifax market experienced a boom from 2003 to 2007, when sales volume and price growth were above average. From 2008 to 2012, growth slowed to just above inflation, and he said it will be in line with inflation this year.

"The hypothesis is that individuals who were homeowners in the early 2000s were able to make some good gains on the value of their real estate," he said. "Today for them it could be a better decision, financially, to sell their home and move into an apartment."

Similar trends were noted recently during a meeting of Halifax regional council's committee of the whole. Finance manager Bruce Fisher, providing an overview of the city's finances to kick off budget deliberations, told council residential construction was in decline.

"Normally you see about 2,000 to 3,000 new homes a year," he said. "We expect to be at the lower end of that, and we expect most of those homes to be concentrated in multi-unit homes as opposed to single-family homes."

Neault said Halifax is also suffering from an excess inventory of newly built unsold homes, which in turn can be blamed on a stalled economy.

"In Halifax especially over the past four or five years, we have seen very little employment growth," he said. "So this becomes somewhat challenging to have a vibrant housing market." RUTH DAVENPORT/METRO

Amherst. N.S. town may accept treated wastewater from oil, gas explorations

Amherst has entered into negotiations with Atlantic Industrial Services to accept treated wastewater from its treatment facility in Debert for disposal in the town's new $13-million wastewater facility on the marsh.

The treated water is from the oil and gas exploration that took place in 2007 and 2008 in Kennetcook.

"It's fair to say that the acceptance of this product by municipally owned facilities in Nova Scotia has been somewhat controversial. It's important to note that with the reverse osmosis process another significant layer of process has been added to that which was the case when other municipalities declined to accept the product," Amherst chief administrative officer Greg Herrett told town council Thursday.

"We are confident that we have taken a businesslike approach to consideration of this significant opportunity for the Town of Amherst. It has been considered from a technical, financial and legal point of view.

Debert facility

The water is to be treated for naturally occurring radioactive materials and put through reverse osmosis at the Debert facility. The treated wastewater meets Canadian Council of Environment Ministers and Health Canada guidelines for release into fresh water and meets the requirements for discharge in the town wastewater discharge bylaw.

- Herrett said the water the town accepts will meet Health Canada Drinking Water Quality Guidelines.

We have engaged experts in each of these fields to provide advice."

After considering all aspects of what he calls a significant revenue opportunity, Herrett said staff is recommending council approve a letter of intent. CUMBERLAND NEWS

Amherst's new police station to cost about $3M

Occupancy expected August 2015. Council moving ahead despite concerns over regionalization

After several years of discussion Amherst has decided to spend $2.87 million to build a new police facility on the site of the former Royal Canadian Legion building on Princess Street.

Council voted during a special session on Thursday to award the tender to Maritech Construction to build the new facility that will replace the building the department had to abandon in August 2012 after a fire next door destroyed the Windsor and Black Block buildings.

The department has been working out of temporary quarters on the second floor of the Four Fathers Memorial Library since then.

"People talk about it being

a new facility for the police department, but it's a new facility that will serve the town," Chief Ian Naylor said after council voted 6-1 in favour of awarding the contract.

Maritech and ADI Atlantic Ltd. were the two firms that bid on the project. Tenders for the design and build of the facility closed on Sept. 24 and were evaluated with Maritech, an Amherst firm, scoring 98 out of 100.

The cost of the facility will be covered by the $550,000 insurance settlement from the previous police facility with the remainder coming through borrowing.

Amherst Mayor Rob Small said no one can predict where regionalization will go, and while no one can predict how Amherst will be affected by it, he said the town will continue to need a police force.

"With the current political and economic climate in Nova Scotia no municipality can say they are immune to this discussion. Even in such a circumstance, though, Amherst would still require a police force that takes a proactive approach to policing our town."

Construction will begin in early December with occupancy expected by August 2015. AMHERST DAILY NEWS

Artist's spooktacular house takes Halloween to a new level

Barbara Floyd. Nova Scotia woman admits to maybe getting 'a little carried away'

A quick glance at Barbara Floyd's house is enough to confirm the Sydney artist does nothing half-heartedly.

Floyd's Lorway Avenue home is a celebration of all that is Halloween.

"I think every neighbourhood should have a haunted house," said Floyd, who recently retired from her hairstyling business.

The energetic 59-year-old recently took time out of her painting schedule to "touch up" her house and give it a Halloween theme.

"I may have gotten a little carried away," she admitted. "But once I got started it just kept getting bigger and bigger."

Floyd transformed her home into a rather creepy emporium of spooky creatures and ghastly images, starting with a giant mural that she painted on panels of plywood that were then put together to form a wall around the front porch.

"This is where I will greet all the trick-or-treaters who stop by — many of the little ones won't go any further because it is scary," she said.

For the older ones who summon up enough courage,

Floyd will lead them into the porch area, where things that go bump in the night lurk in a shadowy hallway.

Floyd acknowledges that

Ghosts and ghouls

So where does she all obtain her props, images, pictures and creatures?

- "One just accumulates them after awhile," said Floyd. "And some of them just sort of appeared out of the blue!"

some of the images of creatures can be spooky, but she hopes that people take it all in a good way.

"It's all about having fun and enjoying Halloween," she said.

A few lucky neighbours, friends and family members will be invited to the inner sanctum, where even more creepy-crawlies can be found hanging in doorways and cages, sitting on chairs, and floating airily above.

CBC execs mum on Ghomeshi

Jian Ghomeshi arrives on the green carpet for the Juno Gala in Winnipeg on March 29. JOHN WOODS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Staying silent. How much did they know? Head honchos refuse to speak publicly about allegations of violence

Top brass at the CBC are silent on what they knew, and when, about allegations of violence and sexual harassment against disgraced radio host Jian Ghomeshi.

President Hubert Lacroix, executive vice-president of English services Heather Conway and head of radio Chris Boyce did not return multiple requests for comment on Thursday, the same day the CBC told staff it was hiring an external firm to investigate allegations against Ghomeshi within the firm and offering counselling.

"Given that these matters are now before the courts and the grievance arbitration process, we will be limited in our communications," CBC spokesman Chuck Thompson said in an email to Torstar News Service.

"We look forward to the opportunity to fully disclose the facts of these matters. We are extremely confident that CBC will be seen to have acted very quickly when we concluded that we could not continue our employment relationship with Jian Ghomeshi.... We believe that the information will demonstrate that the CBC acted as a prudent and responsible employer."

While CBC executives have not spoken publicly, they are communicating with staff about the Ghomeshi allegations. In a memo announcing the third-party investigation and counselling, Conway called Torstar and CBC reports "extremely disturbing and of great concern to all of us."

She praised the "professionalism" of staff and reminded them that while they are not prevented from responding to reporters' questions, they should not feel obligated.

It isn't just current CBC managers staying mum. Kirstine Stewart, in charge of English services from 2011 to 2013 and now a VP at Twitter, told Torstar in a tweet to contact the site's PR department, which did not return a request for comment.

Former CBC president Robert Rabinovitch, at the CBC helm from 1999 to 2007, and Denise Donlon, head of radio

CBC's union

The union representing CBC employees is also keeping a tight lid on information, after it announced Wednesday that one CBC employee who spoke with Torstar did not report her allegations to a union representative, but rather a colleague who was a union volunteer.

- The union said this person was not given the details the woman shared with Torstar.

from 2008 to 2011, did not return requests for comment.

Only Richard Stursberg, executive vice-president of English services from 2004 to 2010, talked to Torstar. He was in charge in 2007, when Q was born.

"There was never any conversation or indication at the time that there was anything problematic about his behaviour," said Stursberg.

"I was saddened for the CBC, I was saddened for Jian's career, and sad for the women..." said Stursberg on the allegations.

Prince Charles. Royal donates to families of slain Canadian soldiers

Prince Charles has made what is being described as a substantial donation to the families of the two Canadian soldiers killed recently in separate attacks.

Clarence House confirmed a donation was made to the True Patriot Love Foundation, which is managing the flood of money coming in through the Stand on Guard Fund. The contribution was made explicitly for the families of Cpl. Nathan Cirillo and Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent.

The Prince of Wales's Charitable Foundation isn't revealing the amount of the donation, but a source close to the matter called it "substantial."

The Stand on Guard Fund was created in the wake of last Wednesday's fatal shooting of reservist Cpl. Nathan Cirillo in front of the National War Memorial in Ottawa. Donations can be made through standonguardfund.com.

the suspects applied online for more than 100 credit cards using other people's names.

Police say the pair targeted Home Depot Canada, purchasing gift cards, appliances, home renovation products and other items, and that payments were made using not-sufficient-fund cheques.

Max. sentence sought for Bourque

25, 50 or 75 years

The judge in Bourque's case is not bound by the recommendations from the Crown and defence, said Carissima Mathen, a law professor at the University of Ottawa.

- However, Mathen said the judge doesn't have much room to move, given that the penalty for first-degree murder is fixed at 25 years. It would appear the judge's only choices are 25, 50 or 75 years of parole ineligibility.

Justin Bourque's killing of three Mounties has been described in court as one of the worst crimes in Canadian history, prompting recommendations from Crown and defence lawyers for the harshest sentence in more than 50 years.

Judge David Smith, chief justice of the Court of Queen's Bench in New Brunswick, is scheduled to sentence the 24-year-old Friday, four months after Bourque used a semi-automatic rifle to fatally shoot three officers and wound two others in Moncton's north end.

Bourque pleaded guilty in August to three counts of first-degree murder and two counts of attempted murder.

The Crown is seeking the maximum sentence — 75 years without eligibility to apply for parole — under a section of the Criminal Code that was amended in 2011.

Prior to that, Bourque would have been handed an automatic life sentence with no chance at parole for 25 years, the mandatory penalty for one or more convictions of first-degree murder.

However, the amended legislation gives the judge the option of extending Bourque's parole ineligibility because he is a multiple murderer. The legislation is called the Protecting Canadians by Ending Sentence Discounts for Multiple Murders Act.

Smith could decide that the 25-year ineligibility period for each of the three murder convictions should be imposed consecutively for a total of 75 years. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Feds unveil family tax credits, benefits

Families first.

Conservatives' taxation and child-care pledge aims to put more money in Canadians' pockets

Prime Minister Stephen Harper is pressing ahead with income splitting for families with kids under 18 — a 2011 multibillion-dollar Conservative election promise critics believe benefits too few Canadians.

Addressing the concern, the Conservatives' plan to boost the universal child-care benefit — $160 a month for kids under six, up from $100, plus a new monthly benefit of $60 for children aged six through 17, effective in 2015.

"Our government is utterly convinced of one thing: When it comes to the cost of raising a family, Canada's moms and dads deserve all of the help that we can give them."

The government is also adding $1,000 to the various limits on the child-care expense deduction, which allows taxpayers to claim child-care expenses incurred. This carries an estimated cost of $15 million in 2014-15.

Harper said the suite of measures would help all Canadian families and it's something the government will be able to afford.

"At the same time, we're doing this in a way that ensures that the things we promised in the last election will actually reach people in the life of this Parliament."

Jakarta. Jailed ex-Calgary teacher becoming fearful as prosecution prepares to lay charges against him

Neil Bantleman said Thursday from his Jakarta cell that he fears for his safety as Indonesian prosecutors prepare to lay sexual abuse charges against the former Calgary teacher.

"I would like to ask the government to assist me in anyway possible as I have little confidence in the judicial system here and am very concerned about receiving a fair trial," he wrote in a message to Metro.

On Wednesday, his brother Guy Bantleman told reporters he's learned a case police have said they're building against Neil has been turned over to prosecutors and it's likely charges would be laid by week's end.

Neil has adamantly denied accusations that he sexually abused kindergarten-aged children at the Jakarta International School, where he and his wife, Tracy, work. Both he and another teacher taken into custody at the same time in July have received support from thousands around the world.

Fears have also emerged that Neil will be transferred from a minimum-security cell in Jakarta to a maximum-security site that his brother has said will be filled with gangsters, rapists and murderers.

Neil said in his messages he hadn't received formal word of a transfer, but fears the nature of the charges against him could make him a target.

"I am very concerned for my safety as we enter a new jail with horrible allegations placed against us," he said, referring to himself and fellow teacher Ferdinand Tijong.

His brother, meanwhile,

Neil Bantleman

has lobbied hard for assistance from Canada's Department of Foreign Affairs officials but said he's had little success.

Caitlin Workman, a spokesperson for the federal department, said in an emailed response issued to Metro early Thursday: "We are aware of the latest developments in this case and are monitoring the situation closely. Canadian consular officials are providing assistance as required, and remain in contact with the family."

Neil said his lawyers are still working on obtaining the evidence that Jakarta police intend to bring against him in court. The Wall Street Journal reported last month that leaked police reports contain allegations of underground rooms at the international school and victim claims that Neil conjured a "magic stone" to sedate his victims.

RCMP requests for telecom data poorly tracked

Annual report. Daniel Therrien says he couldn't tell how often the Mounties collected subscriber data without a warrant

The privacy watchdog is calling on federal authorities to keep better track of informal requests to telecommunications companies for subscriber data after finding shoddy record-keeping at the RCMP.

In his annual report tabled Thursday, privacy commissioner Daniel Therrien said shortcomings in the RCMP's information management systems meant he was unable to tell whether proper controls were in place.

It was impossible to determine how often the Mounties collected subscriber data without a warrant, Therrien said. As a result, his office could not assess whether such requests were justified.

Privacy and civil liberties advocates have raised concerns about the ability of police and intelligence agencies to gain access to details of the public's online activities, particularly given revelations about widespread surveillance by government agencies. People understand that law-enforcement and national security agencies have legitimate need to collect personal details, Therrien said.

The Mounties have agreed to bring in a system to monitor and report on warrantless requests. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nurse defies Ebola quarantine

Maine. Kaci Hickox, who spent time treating patients in Sierra Leone, was the first forced into New Jersey's mandatory quarantine

A nurse who vowed to defy Maine's voluntary quarantine for health-care workers who treated Ebola patients followed through on her promise Thursday, leaving her home for an hour-long bike ride.

Kaci Hickox and her boyfriend stepped out of their home Thursday morning and rode away on mountain bikes, followed by a state police cruiser.

It was the second time Hickox broke quarantine. She left her home Wednesday evening briefly to speak to reporters, even shaking a hand that was offered to her.

Hickox contends there's no need for quarantine because she's showing no symptoms.

Legality and guidelines

Generally, states have broad authority when it comes to such matters. But Maine health officials could have a tough time convincing a judge that Hickox poses a threat, said attorney Jackie L. Caynon III, who specializes in health law in Worcester, Mass.

- Guidelines from the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommend daily monitoring for health-care workers like Hickox who have come into contact with Ebola patients. But some states like Maine are going above and beyond those guidelines.

She's also tested negative for the deadly disease.

"I really hope that we can work things out amicably and continue to negotiate," she said Thursday morning while riding on a dirt trail.

There was no immediate comment from state health officials, who were going to court to detain Hickox for the remainder of the 21-day incubation period for Ebola that ends on Nov. 10.

"There's a lot of misinformation about how Ebola is transmitted, and I can understand why people are frightened. But their fear is not based on medical facts," Norman Siegel, one of her attorneys, said Wednesday.

Hickox, who treated Ebola patients while volunteering in Sierra Leone with Doctors Without Borders, was the first person forced into New Jersey's mandatory quarantine for people arriving at the Newark airport from three West African countries. Hickox spent the weekend in a tent in New Jersey she shares with her boyfriend.

President Barack Obama warned that overly restrictive measures imposed upon returning health-care workers could discourage them from volunteering in Africa.

North Korea to crack down on tourists over fears of Ebola virus

North Korea announced Thursday it will quarantine foreigners entering the country for 21 days over fears of the spread of the Ebola virus, even though no cases of the disease have been reported anywhere in Asia, and very few foreigners are allowed to enter.

North Korea is always on guard against outside influences, but now that it perceives the deadly disease to be a threat, its anxiety has reached a new level. It has banned tourists, put business groups on hold and is looking even more suspiciously than usual at every foreign face coming across its borders.

Case in point: When a high-level delegation from Japan arrived in Pyongyang this week, two of the first people they met were dressed in full hazmat gear. The steps also send a message to the North Korean people to be very afraid of the outside world and of outside influences. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philly police turn department lobby, parking lot into 'safe zone' for online transactions

A police department in suburban Philadelphia has created a "safe zone" for people to complete transactions they arranged online.

The Conshohocken Police Department said individuals making purchases through Craigslist and other sites are free to complete deals in the department's lobby or parking lot. The idea for the safe zone came after an officer said his wife told him she was going to another person's house to complete an online purchase. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

'Technology and stuff.' #ChevyGuy to keep his job, despite national blooper

Shortly before 9 a.m. on the day after the worst night of his life, Rikk Wilde got a call from his boss at General Motors.

Yes, he committed a nationally televised, major-league blooper while presenting pickup truck keys to the World Series MVP. No, he wouldn't be fired. Now get out there and sell some trucks.

GM had lined up Wilde, a lifelong Royals fan, for the postgame presentation because he's a good employee and loves baseball. There was hope that he'd be giving the keys to a Chevrolet Colorado to someone on the home team. But instead it went to San Francisco Giants ace Madison Bumgarner, who saved Game 7 by shutting out the Royals for five innings.

Wilde had practised for the moment, an effort to draw attention to GM's newest product, and brought notes just in case he forgot something. He did. When Fox Sports announcer Erin Andrews introduced him, he was sweating. As he started to say his lines, he stumbled and had to look to his notes. He ad-libbed a line that would bring guffaws on social media: "It combines class-winning and leading, you know, technology and stuff, with Wi-Fi powered by OnStar."

#Technologyandstuff was trending on Twitter, as was #ChevyGuy, with many comparing Wilde to the late Chris Farley. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

2018 World Cup. FIFA regrets video that shows Crimea part of Russia

FIFA has expressed regret on Thursday after its video launching the logo for the 2018 World Cup showed the disputed Crimean peninsula as part of Russia.

The video, broadcast as the logo was beamed onto Moscow's Bolshoi Theatre on Tuesday, included a map of host nation Russia, including Crimea.

Russia annexed the Crimean peninsula in March to fierce opposition from many Western governments. The Ukrainian government still claims Crimea as part of its territory.

The original video has been removed from FIFA's YouTube channel and replaced with an edited version excluding the two-second sequence in which the map of Russia was shown.

The video angered some Ukrainian commentators.

Markiyanyuk, who directed Ukraine's preparations to host Euro 2012 and is now an adviser to the head of the Ukrainian security services, called for legal action in an online post and suggested the video could aid the cause of pro-Russian separatists in Ukraine. "Lawyers, get ready," he wrote. "If we don't react toughly to things like this, then soon nothing will be left of us." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Double-double, toil and trouble for Tim Hortons?

Report. Takeover by Burger King could have some scary consequences, such as massive layoffs

Widespread layoffs and strict cost-cutting measures could befall Tim Hortons if Burger King's parent company takes over the chain, says a study from the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives.

The left-leaning think-tank released a scathing review of 3G Capital's past takeovers on Thursday and concluded that the Brazilian private equity firm's track record is predictive of "overwhelmingly negative consequences for Canadians" and the Tim Hortons restaurant chain.

"Without additional strong assurances from 3G Capital that no jobs will be lost ... this may not be in the net benefit of Canada," said CCPA senior economist David Macdonald, who was involved in the preparation of the report.

The policy centre said 3G Capital hasn't made a suit-

Tim Hortons' takeover by Burger King's parent company may prove stale for Canadians. JONATHAN HAYWARD/THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE able case for how the merged company benefits Canadians and it's urging the federal government to demand "a better deal" before it approves the transaction.

Included in its analysis is the assumption that the investment company, in its $11-billion US takeover of the Canadian company, would follow a similar playbook to past takeovers.

The report suggests 3G Capital's debt financing could force Tim Hortons to lay off more than 700 employees — or 44 per cent of staff working outside its restaurants — as it tries to manage the debt of the merged company.

In response to the study, Tim Hortons spokesman Scott Bonikowsky said the merged company intends to keep the Tim Hortons brand independent of its owner and maintain "traditional levels of community support, restaurant-level jobs and franchisee relationships."

Apple CEO Tim Cook smashes the glass closet

Apple CEO Tim Cook says he's proud to be gay.

The public declaration, in an essay written for Bloomberg Businessweek, makes Cook the highest-profile business CEO to come out as gay.

Cook said that while he never denied his sexuality, he never publicly acknowledged it, either. The executive said that for years he's been open with many people about his sexual orientation and that plenty of his Apple colleagues know he is gay.

Cook wrote in the column, published Thursday, that it wasn't an easy choice to publicly disclose that he is gay, but that he felt the acknowledgement could help others.

"I've come to realize that my desire for personal privacy has been holding me back from doing something more important," he wrote.

Examining the night within us

Movies. As Maps to the Stars opens, Metro's Richard Crouse takes a look at director David Cronenberg's darkest works

Hollywood — self-obsessed child that it is — enjoys turning the camera on itself, but with Maps to the Stars, director David Cronenberg uses the city as a palette to paint a picture of the stupid, venal and stratospherically self-involved behaviour that goes on behind the scenes in Beverly Hills's gated communities and back lots.

At the centre of the film are the Weisses, a Hollywood family (John Cusack, Olivia Williams and Evan Bird) with more secrets than TMZ's too-hot-to-handle file, Havana Segrand (Julianne Moore), a former big name actress who is now as messed up as she is washed up and Agatha (Mia Wasikowska), a burn victim with schizophrenia whose presence threatens to expose closely guarded secrets.

This may be the most sun-dappled film Cronenberg has ever made, but don't let the light fool you; it's also one of his darkest.

I say one of his darkest because the 71-year-old director has frequently visited what Victor Hugo called "night within us," provoking Village Voice to call him, "the most audacious and challenging narrative director in the English-speaking world."

Spider, a trip into the mind of a severely mentally disturbed man starring Ralph Fiennes, is a case in point. Called "Cronenberg's most depressingly bleak

Maps to the Stars

Director. David Cronenberg

Stars. Julianne Moore, John Cusack, Robert Pattinson, Mia Wasikowska

Hollywood points the camera on itself but not since The Player has the selfie provided such a wonderfully sadistic portrait of Tinsel Town. At the centre of David Cronenberg's film is a Hollywood family — played by John Cusack, Olivia Williams and Evan Bird. Orbiting them are a former big name actress (Julianne Moore) and a burn victim (Mia Wasikowska), whose presence threatens to expose closely guarded secrets. The terrific performances and decidedly un-Hollywood feel of this, the most Hollywood of Cronenberg's films, make Maps a compelling psychological thriller.

film," by critic Ken Hanke, the 2002 film sees Fiennes deliver a virtually dialogue-free performance as the title character. But it is Miranda Richardson as several characters — all the women in Spider's life — who really steals the show. It's a spooky, cerebral thriller.

The Brood is probably Cronenberg's most traditional horror film. Featuring murderous psychoplastic kids, experimental psychotherapist Oliver Reed and Samantha Eggar as a fetus-licking mother, it is the very stuff that nightmares are made of. It's lesser seen than The Fly or Dead Zone and way more down-and-dirty, but for sheer scares it's hard to beat.

A Dangerous Mind, the tautly told story of two psychoanalysts you've heard of, Dr. Carl Jung (Michael Fassbender) and Sigmund Freud (Viggo Mortensen), plus one you've probably never heard of, Sabina Spielrein (Keira Knightley), sees Cronenberg combine a love story and birth of modern analysis.

The almost total lack of physical action means the focus is on the words. Some will see a film rich with dialogue, others will see it as verbose. But that's the kind of duality the movie explores.

Finally, in Cosmopolis, Cronenberg takes us along for an existential road trip through the breakdown of modern society. Based on a novel by Don DeLillo and starring Robert Pattinson as a controlling and self-destructive billionaire money manager, the movie covers the gamut of human experience, from haircuts, money and infidelity to asymmetric prostates and mortality.

If wishes were big film budgets

Horror. Canadian filmmaker and FX guy Steven Kostanski talks about making scares when cash is scarce

scene@metronews.ca

Winnipeg-born, Toronto-based FX wizard Steven Kostanski (of gonzo collective ASTRON-6) learned about the ABC's of filmmaking while making his beloved, invisibly budgeted contemporary cult classics Father's Day and Manborg, outrageously innovative genre send-ups that exemplified his maverick sensibility.

So it makes sense, then, that Kostanski's latest bid for strange cinema infamy lies within the body of a film called The ABC's of Death 2 (opening today in select Canadian markets), the go-for-broke sequel to 2012's horror hit.

In it, two-dozen-plus directors (including Canada's The Soska Sisters and Vincenzo Natali) were given a random letter of the English alphabet, a modest chunk of money and allowed to let their imaginations run wild. Kostanski and his crew got 'W' and designed his segment, 'W is for Wish' accordingly.

"Our entry was based on an idea that we had already been developing," says the visionary director. "It was sort of a play on the old He-Man toys and I had already started developing a toy line surrounding the concept. So when we got asked to do The ABC's of Death, I thought, OK, let's combine toys with the movie and have these kids sucked in a fantasy universe and realize the toys in live action."

And that's what happens in W is for Wish, the critical favourite of the anthology — a mock commercial in which two eager lads playing with their gladiator toys are warped into an ultra-violent hell of bloody battles and brutal kink. The segment is as ingenious as it is hilarious.

"Like everything I make,

W is for Wish started out as a simple idea that got considerably more complicated as we went along, and then ended up costing considerably more," says Kostanski.

"And of course, I had to kick in my own money to finish it. I'd say that everybody involved in The ABC's of Death 2 are working professionally in film, and like them, I found it hard to meet timelines, so I was literally finishing it at night while working doing FX on the new Guillermo del Toro film Crimson Peak during the day."

Kostanski's eye for design, unobtrusive wit and ability to wear many hats has given him a reputation as an artist who can make a dime look like a dollar, and one wonders what in the world he'd ever do if — God forbid — someone actually gave him a sizeable budget to play with.

"If I ever had real money, I'd pay people for a change, I think," says the filmmaker, only half joking. "But low budgets keep you creative; they keep the brain working. So I'm fine where I am for now."

W is for Wish is Steven Kostanski's submission to the ABC's of Death 2 film anthology. CONTRIBUTED

Rene Russo

Nightcrawler is a pulse-pounding thriller set in the underbelly of contemporary Los Angeles. Jake Gyllenhaal stars as Lou Bloom, a driven young man desperate for work who discovers the high-speed world of L.A. crime journalism. Finding a group of freelance camera crews who film crashes, fires, murder and other mayhem, Lou muscles into the cut-throat, dangerous realm of nightcrawling.

Cronenberg is a creature of comfort

David Cronenberg may have a career that's lasted nearly five decades but he's still discovering his muses. His latest film, Maps to the Stars, notably marks a reunion with actor Robert Pattinson. "It's exciting to cast an actor that you worked with and you get along with," said Cronenberg. "It gives you comfort in that you have a comrade in arms who you know will not crack." In light of Maps' theatrical release on Friday, we take a look at Cronenberg's favourite young comrades.

STEVE GOW scene@metronews.ca

Robert Pattinson

History: Maps to the Stars marks the second partnership with Cronenberg after Cosmopolis. In the 2013 film, he played a powerful billionaire being chauffeured in his limo. In Maps, he's a naïve limo driver desperate to be a star.

Cronenberg: "Rob is a lovely sweet guy to work with. Of course he's got charisma because he wouldn't have been the success that he was, even in Twilight, without having something, but I think he's much more chameleon-like than people give him credit for."

Sarah Gadon

History: Gadon is perhaps Cronenberg's most frequent muse, with three collaborations in her filmography (Maps, A Dangerous Method and Cosmopolis). In fact, the Toronto talent is practically part of the family now having also starred in the 2012 thriller Antiviral (directed by David's son, Brandon).

Cronenberg: "She's really magical. She's got such an amazing presence and face, great voice and (she's) tough artistically — she's not afraid of anything."

Viggo Mortensen

History: Cronenberg may be partly responsible for the actor's sole Oscar nomination, for a wrenching role in Eastern Promises, but don't overlook the duo's other captivating collaborations: A History of Violence and the Sigmund Freud biopic, A Dangerous Method.

Cronenberg: "Getting Viggo to play Freud, he's never done anything like that. It's scary for both of us but he had to trust me. He didn't think he could do it, but once he plugged into it and you get the fake nose and he puts on some weight and suddenly the beard — it's Freud!"

May 4, 2018/May 3, 2019

The Avengers: Infinity War Parts I and II

Need to know: The third film is split. The details are scant, but comic series centred on the Infinity Gauntlet, which gives its possessor godlike powers.

July 6, 2018

Captain Marvel

Need to know: Captain Marvel marks the studio's first films centred on a woman from Marvel comics. The iteration will be Carol Danvers, an Air Force officer whose adventures take her into space.

Nov. 2, 2018

Inhumans

Need to know: The Inhumans are a race of superhumans who first appeared in Marvel in the 1960s.

Studio survival

Superheroes reap super returns

Money-makers: So-called "tent pole" films — big money-making movies that are often sequels to tried-and-tested blockbusters — are increasingly important to studios, as the movie-watching experience fragments with online viewing. The first Avengers movie and last year's Iron Man 3 are among the top five grossing films ever, together earning more than $2.7 billion worldwide.

DC Comics: In mid-October, Warner Bros. announced a slate of 10 films based on DC Comics characters, including The Flash, Aquaman, Cyborg, Wonder Woman and Shazam.

Dreams dashed for Kendall and Kylie as fans aren't buying what they're selling

They can't all be bestsellers, apparently. Since debuting in June, the sci-fi YA novel "written" by Kendall and Kylie Jenner, Rebels: City of Indra, has sold just 13,000 copies, which is totally not cute. So it's safe to assume the teens' long-term goals of launching a film franchise based on the book aren't going to pan out either. "We were saying, if we were to do a movie, like, what would we want to do?" one of them explained during an interview with Good Morning America promoting the book's launch. "Like, if we were to be in it, like what movie would we want to be in?" That's a pretty big "if," young lady.

Aniston comes clean after being spotted without engagement ring

Several corners of the Celebrity Industrial Complex quaked with fear this week when Jennifer Aniston was spotted without the flashy engagement ring given to her by fiancé Justin Theroux. Was everything OK between the pair? Is the wedding off? Which Friends co-star will she turn to first for comfort? But don't worry, false alarm everyone. "Everyone should calm down," Aniston's rep says. "The ring was just being cleaned and is safely back on her hand." Oh good. By the way, I hope we can start a trend of beginning every official statement with "Everyone should calm down." Or is that usually implied?

What are the Terminator producers secretly up to?

NED
Metro in Hollywood

It was probably foolish to have any optimism at all about the new Terminator film due next summer — especially once its title, Terminator Genisys, was revealed. But now any hope for a decent entry into the franchise is gone.

In a first look at the film in Entertainment Weekly, some extremely troubling plot details are revealed: In this edition, young Sarah Connor (now played by Games of Thrones star Emilia Clarke) "was orphaned by a Terminator at the age of nine. Since then, she's been raised by ... (Arnold) Schwarzenegger's Terminator — an older T-800 she calls Pops — who is programmed to guard rather than kill."

So does this mean that they're undoing the events of the first two films? Which happen to be the only good ones in the franchise? The film's production wrapped in August, but maybe it's not too late to send a screenwriter back in time and fix this.

But the news does at least feed into my Terminator behind-the-scenes theory: After defying the odds and making an awesome low-budget sci-fi movie followed by a groundbreaking, genre-defining sequel, the producers realized they could never top themselves, so they secretly set out to make each film successively worse. I didn't say it was a good plan.

Is it too late to scrap this movie and just bring back The Sarah Connor Chronicles?

Pass the sprinkles! Affleck and Damon bond over frozen yogurt

Ben Affleck finally returned Matt Damon's phone calls, apparently, as the Good Will Hunting scribes are teaming up to executive produce a new single-camera sitcom from 30 Rock writer Colleen McGuinness for Fox. And while the show doesn't have a title yet, it does have a ridiculously awesome-sounding premise: A young frozen yogurt shop employee suddenly discovers she has telekinetic powers. Sign me up.

beating. At low speed, add the dry ingredients alternately with the milk until smooth.

5. Divide batter evenly into two separate bowls. Whisk cocoa powder into one of the bowls.

6. With 3 tbsp (45 ml) ice cream scoop, pour chocolate batter in centre of pan and allow to spread 20 seconds. With second ice cream scoop, pour same amount of vanilla batter in centre of chocolate batter. Allow again to spread 20 seconds. Repeat two steps alternately until all batter has been used. Bake 1 hour and 10 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in the centre of cake comes out clean. Let cool for 15 minutes. Unmould from the pan and let cool completely on a wire rack.

Chocolate Ganache

1. In a bowl, pour cream over dark chocolate. Let melt 1 minute. Whisk until smooth. Spread ganache on cake, letting it slightly run down the sides.

Icing

1. In bowl, combine 1 cup (250 ml) of icing sugar with 1 tbsp (15 ml) of water. With pastry bag fitted with small tip, apply spiral of icing on ganache. # McDonald at home playing in Halifax

QMJHL. Performing in front of his family gives Islanders goalie added motivation

kristen.lipscombe@metronews.ca

Mason McDonald has proven himself as red hot in the crease, even when the crowd is ice cold towards him.

The Charlottetown Islanders netminder made 36 saves in Wednesday night's 4-1 win over the Halifax Mooseheads, despite facing frustrated Herd forwards who riddled him with shots, and frustrated fans inside the Scotiabank Centre who booed and hissed him at every opportunity.

McDonald, the first goalie selected in the 2014 NHL Entry Draft, stayed focused on the task at hand, turning away puck after puck against his hometown Quebec Major Junior Hockey League team.

He is from Halifax, after all. "It's just another game," the lanky 18-year-old, who was selected 34th overall by the Calgary Flames, said shortly after Wednesday's win, adding he doesn't "worry about the crowd."

"If they're booing for us, if they're cheering for us, I just go out and play," the six-foot-four, 191-pound third-year major junior player said.

Moose Country members particularly voiced their displeasure with McDonald when he stepped out of his net and into the faceoff circle to give star Herd forward Nikolaj Ehlers a strong tap with his stick while play was stopped.

"No comment," is all McDonald would say about that incident, a sly smile on his lips.

He did have some fans in the stands, though.

Plenty of family members and friends came down to the dressing room following the game to congratulate him on what was Charlottetown's first win over Halifax this season.

"It breaks a streak of two years that the Islanders haven't won here, so it feels great," said McDonald, who was traded by

Quoted

"Obviously, they can't come to all the games, and when I come to Halifax, it's special to play in front of them; it kind of motivates me a little more."

Charlottetown Islanders netminder Mason McDonald on playing in front of family in his hometown of Halifax the Acadie-Bathurst Titan mid-way through last season. "All the guys are excited."

Younger sister Cathy McDonald, 13, grinned proudly as she waited to greet her big brother down at ice level.

"He worked hard for it," she said. "He played really well — it's (his) first win against the Mooseheads."

Dad Brian McDonald said it's "very exciting" for the whole family to come out and watch his son play when Charlottetown is in town. "He keeps getting better as the season goes along."

McDonald said it "motivates him a little more" to play in the arena where he used to come cheer on the Mooseheads.

That certainly showed Wednesday night, even if he was playing for the opposition.

"I heard a few boos when I touched the puck, but other than that I have a lot of support behind me," McDonald said. "I'm looking forward to coming here next time."

Mooseheads must make chances count, head coach says

The Halifax Mooseheads have to make their scoring chances count, head coach Dominique Ducharme said Thursday.

That's a message he'll be passing on to players in preparation for the Herd's upcoming two-game weekend, a home game against the Moncton Wildcats on Saturday night at the Scotiabank Centre followed by a rematch against the Charlottetown Islanders on the road Sunday at the East-link Centre.

The Moose fell 4-1 to the Islanders on Wednesday night, capitalizing on only one of nine power plays and scoring on only one of 37 shots total. The loss gives Halifax a 5-10-1-1 record on the 2014-15 season.

Dominique Ducharme METRO

"We've been giving up less chances to the other team on the defensive side," Ducharme said of his team's improvement so far.

On the offensive side, "we've been creating chances for ourselves," he added.

"I think we need to find a way to finish our plays at the net," Ducharme said. "It's just a matter of taking our chances and making them count."

The bench boss said his players are over-thinking it a bit when they skate into the offensive zone, taking a little bit too much time with the puck before putting it on net. But they're also doing a lot of "little details" right on the ice.

"We did a good job," Ducharme said. "There's not a whole lot of things to change."

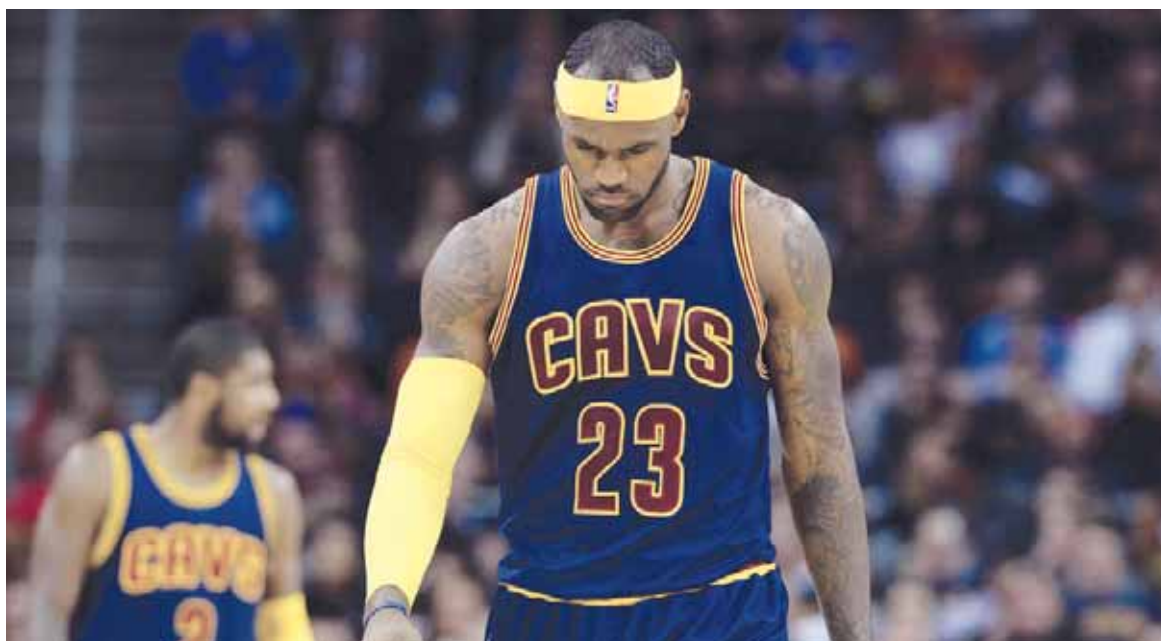

As long as the Mooseheads "stick with it ... good things will happen," he said.

LeBron recedes from spotlight in opener

NBA. Knicks spoil party in superstar native son's return to Cleveland

LeBron James struggled from the start in his first game with Cleveland in four years, and the New York Knicks ruined the megastar's emotional homecoming with a 95-90 win over the Cavaliers on Thursday night.

James, who returned to the Cavs and his native Ohio this summer after winning two NBA titles in Miami, finished with 17 points on 5-of-15 shooting. He also committed eight turnovers and never looked comfortable on a night when the entire city — and a star-studded crowd — celebrated his comeback.

Carmelo Anthony scored

25 points and buried a jumper with James in his face with 25 seconds left to give the Knicks a 92-87 lead.

Kyrie Irving scored 22 and Kevin Love added 19 points and 14 rebounds for the Cavs, who have some work to before they can start thinking about any titles.

Iman Shumpert and Jason Smith had 12 points apiece for the Knicks, who were embarrassed at home on Wednesday by Chicago.

James was greeted with a thunderous ovation before the game by Cleveland fans, who had been counting down the days until the opener since he announced his return in a touching essay on July 11.

This was more than a game for Cleveland. It was a homecoming, an event and a city-wide block party rolled into one.

The Knicks wrecked it. Cleveland's best highlights came before the game.

Afraid to miss a single moment, the sold-out crowd, which included pop star Justin Bieber, Browns players Johnny Manziel and Joe Haden, and R&B artist Usher, stood as soon as James emerged from the tunnel. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NHL. Pens use shut-down powers against Kings

Marc-Andre Fleury made 35 saves in his 30th NHL shut-out, and Chris Kunitz had two goals in a three-point game to lift the Penguins to a 3-0 victory over the Los Angeles Kings 3-0 on Thursday night in Pittsburgh.

Kris Letang scored his first goal of the season, and Evgeni Malkin became the fifth player in team history to register 400 assists as the Penguins used their dominant power play and a steady performance from Fleury to hand the defending champion Kings just their second regulation loss.

Pittsburgh went 2 for 6 with the man advantage, including two first-period goals that put the Kings on their heels. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS are starting to fear the worst when one of English football's biggest matches comes around. City is looking for a sixth win in its last seven Premier League games against United when the fierce rivals meet at Etihad Stadium on Sunday.

Both teams need a win to keep on the tail of undefeated leader Chelsea, which holds a four-point lead over second-place Southampton and also plays in a derby — against west London rival QPR on Saturday.

City, six points behind Chelsea in third, is going through a poor run of form that continued with a surprise loss to Newcastle in the League Cup on Wednesday. United is in eighth place, 10 points off Chelsea, as it continues a rebuilding job under Louis van Gaal.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

You have a reputation for acting on impulse but today you will show it is not entirely deserved. For best results, think about what you would like to be doing a year from now.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Just because something is popular does not mean you have to join in with it too. You are unlikely to be successful if you slavishly follow the herd.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

You have strong opinions about certain issues and will make sure they get heard over the next 24 hours. You must though expect to arouse equally strong opinions in other people.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

If your instincts tell you that an offer is too good to be true then you must turn it down, no matter how much others promise you will gain. There is no such thing as a sure thing.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

The more difficult a task is, the more determined you will be to make a success of it. With help from Mars and Jupiter over the next few days you'll go a long way by this time next week.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

There is something you need and there is only one person who can give it to you, so you are going to have to ask.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

According to the planets a loved one is going through a bad patch and you alone can help them get out of it.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

What others expect of you bears no relation to what you expect of yourself, so there is room for confusion. Tell them that your plans come first.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

You may not realize it yet but you are on the cusp of a turning point in your life, one you will look back on in years to come and say, "That's when it started get good". Good things can happen today as well.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You may not enjoy the situation you find yourself in today but the good news is if you take the chance to deal with it now it won't bug you again.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

You may not want to hurt a friend's feelings by saying something brutal but you are beginning to realize it may be the only way to make them see sense. Time for tough love.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Don't be afraid to take on more duties over the next few days, especially if you are involved in a joint creative project. The deeper you get involved, the better things will turn out.
